World-Regional Social Policy and Global Governance-Boa Daoan 2009-12-04 This volume explores the case for and the prospects of the development of world-regional social policies as integral components of a pluralistic, equitable and effective system of global governance. Focusing on transnational regionalism, this book examines the trajectory and crossing over of the three streams of scholarly analysis within the past decade which have given rise to this volume: the perceived negative impact of neo-liberal globalization upon national social policy; the need for the effectiveness of securing reforms in the institutions of global social governance; and the increasing salience of the world-regional level of governance in handling cross-border issues. The authors develop an intellectual and research agenda that will also inform the political development of an international programme concerned with the social policy dimensions of regional governance. Combining the perspectives and collective expertise of a team of international scholars and activists, the book features: Theoretical and policy cases for a focus on regionalism and social policy A focus on how social policy is developed and implemented in different world regions An assessment of the regional dimensions of global social agencies, in particular of the UN (ILO, WHO, UNESCO, UNDP) including the approach to the world-Regional social policy of the UN Regional Economic Communities and Development Banks An articulation of a multi-level conceptualisation of global social governance within which regional associations of countries plays a significant part.
